

The Artists' Studio Program – General Information

The Farmington Valley Arts Center

The Farmington Valley Arts Center (FVAC), established in 1974, is a nonprofit creative community whose mission is to “connect creativity to daily life” through the arts by supporting the entire creative artistic process. The Farmington Valley Arts Center fulfills this mission by providing a multifaceted environment for artists and the general public. Professional artists pursue their art or craft in the 19 studios at FVAC where the general public is invited to witness the creative process. Studios are also available for “emerging artists” and an “artist-in-residence” program. A year-round schedule of educational programming in the visual arts is offered for adults and children. Also two galleries are open to the public, exhibiting high quality art and craft. The Farmington Valley Arts Center holds several open studios events, regular artist demonstrations and talks, and gallery exhibits and openings.

The Artists' Studio Program

Overview: The Farmington Valley Arts Center’s Artists’ Studio Program exists to provide professional and emerging artists with working space in an artistic community. Studio artists work in a rental studio space that is open to the public at times of the Arts Center’s special events and programming and at the artist’s discretion. The program showcases a diversity of talents, and artists from a broad spectrum of disciplines may choose to work together and share ideas. The Artists’ Studio Program includes promotional events and optional professional gallery representation. In conjunction with the pursuit of their art, artists participate in and contribute to the Farmington Valley Arts Center’s mission.

Eligibility: Artistic talent and commitment to one’s art and the mission of the Farmington Valley Arts Center are the criteria for acceptance into the Artists’ Studio Program. Emerging and mid-career artists and crafters of promising talent are encouraged to apply. A group of artists donates their time to jury applications, which include work samples, references, the application form, and a résumé along with a list of exhibit participation, if applicable.

The Artist and Farmington Valley Arts Center: FVAC’s Commitment to the Artist

➤ Studio Space and Artistic Community

- FVAC provides a supportive artistic environment and the infrastructure for creating a successful artist studio program.
- FVAC provides professional working space in which to make/create art. All studio artists are to use the studio as work space as noted in this application.
- Studio space can only be used in the spirit of meeting FVAC’s mission. Space may not be used to display or sell the work of non-FVAC studio artists.
- FVAC provides 19 studios leased by artists with similar interests and concerns.
- FVAC provides two galleries and ongoing arts education programs, workshops and events for all ages.
- Studio Artists have created The Studio Artists’ Association (SAA) for supporting professional development. FVAC encourages studio artists to join the SAA.

➤ Marketing Support & Representation

- FVAC organizes, hosts, and promotes special events (e.g., open studios events) that showcase the artists and provide public exposure.
- FVAC publicizes and advertises the studio artists and other programs and events, which includes regular FVAC catalogs, press releases, advertising, and other publicity regarding open studios and other events.
- FVAC's Website provides studio artists' contact information and links to their Websites
- FVAC provides optional representation in a professional gallery (Fisher and/or Visitors' Gallery) and, periodically, optional exhibition of work on or off-site.

➤ Business Support

- Office technologies such as a copier and fax machine are made available to artists.

The Artist and Farmington Valley Arts Center: The Artist's Commitment to FVAC

The Artists' Studio Program is a key component of FVAC. Artists share their talent through their unique art and provide the public with an opportunity to meet and see them at work. Artists working in diverse disciplines from traditional functional crafts to more conceptual uses of materials and ideas are all found at FVAC. The artist works toward both the advancement of career goals and supports FVAC's mission by:

- Continuously working toward artistic and professional development.
- Paying a rental fee for studio space.
- Making a studio space reasonably available to the public to help promote FVAC's mission.
- Participating in events such as "open studios" weekends to gain more public exposure and expand public appreciation of the arts.
- Participating in optional activities such as workshops, informal meetings and critiques with other artists, teaching in their studios, and teaching classes and workshops as FVAC instructors.
- Contributing to a positive, cooperative, mutually beneficial, and respectful atmosphere at FVAC.

Rental Fees

Studio rental rates are $600 per month which includes water, heat and electricity. Artists sharing studio space have a small administrative fee attached to their monthly rate. Studios are approximately 525 square feet. Rental rates reflect a modest FVAC subsidy. FVAC offers a one-year renewable lease. All accepted applicants must be prepared to enter into a one-year contract. Artists accepted as "emerging artists" may be subject to an annual review.
